Shibani Dandekar Loves Dancing

Actress-host Shibani Dandekar says she enjoys dancing, especially to Latin songs. "I love dancing, especially to songs with Latin vibe... so much swag," Shibani said in a statement.

Earlier this week, Shibani released a video of her dancing to the remix of Puerto Rican musicians Pedro Capo and Farruko's hit song "Calma". The reggae-infused song merges Capo's pop sensibilities with Farruko's urban roots. It is an invitation to enjoy life while relaxing at the beach with a drink. "I had a great time dancing with my crew on 'Calma' remix," she said.

Appeal to Make T-Series No. 1 YouTube Site

MUMBAI: Amidst a neck-and-neck competition with Swedish YouTuber PewDiePie to become the world's most subscribed YouTube channel, Indian film production house and music label T-Series head honcho Bhushan Kumar on Wednesday urged people to come together in working towards a historic feat.

PewDiePie so far remains the number one channel on YouTube as per total subscribers with a count of 88,183,054, while T-Series comes a close second with 88,143,297 subscribers.

"There is an Indian YouTube channel on the brink of becoming World's No.1. It has taken us a lot of effort to come this far. To take my father Mr. Gulshan Kumar's dream forward, I started this channel. Today, it belongs to you, to the entire nation. It's a historic moment for all of us. So let's come together and subscribe to T-Series YouTube channel and make India proud," Bhushan said in a video posted on Twitter.

Bhushan used the #BharatWinsYouTube hashtag, and wrote: "We can make history. We can make India win. Subscribe to T-Series."

The T-Series YouTube channel began on March 13, 2006. It has 29 sub-channels, features songs and film trailers. T-Series is associated with the music industry since the past three decades, having an exhaustive catalogue of music across languages.

Team Matters In Films Like 'Golmaal': Kunal

NEW DELHI: Actor Kunal Kemmu has been a part of filmmaker Rohit Shetty's "Golmaal" franchise for a while now. He says the multi-starrer film series works only because of the entire team, including his co-stars Ajay Devgn, Arshad Warsi and Tusshar Kapoor.

Kunal has been part of "Golmaal 3", "Golmaal Again", "Go Goa Gone" and has more multi-starrer movies, including the recently announced "Malang" and the fifth part of "Golmaal", lined up. What does he like about being a part of multi-starrer movies?

"The most important reason is that it's not on your shoulders," he replied with a laugh. But that's not the only reason.

"It's the story that always attracts me. A film like 'Golmaal' only works because of all of us. It is as much Ajay's film as it is mine or Arshad's or Tusshar's. These are the stories of the gang," Kunal told IANS in a telephonic interview.

"I do have a solo film coming out this year. It's a fun-filled film. I am trying to do multiple things which I kind of enjoy doing," added the "Kalyug" actor.

He feels that as an actor, no body really knows what's going to work. "If we knew we would all be doing successful films. It is unpredictable... what kind of film will open... how on a Friday. Multi-starrers have gone down, newcomers' films have worked. So, there is some formula that none of us actually know," said Kunal.

He is currently tied up with his maiden web series "Abhay", an eight-episode crime thriller on ZEE5. "It's a new platform for me and new experience. It's a longer commitment. By the time I will be done with eight episodes, there will be about seven hours of footage.

"So playing a character for seven hours and playing a character for two hours on screen... There's a difference. It's a process that I am enjoying," he said.

Anil Is Happy - Inside & Out

MUMBAI: As a sea of memes hit the social media world on how Anil Kapoor is reverse ageing in terms of his looks, the veteran actor says the secret to his youthful look at 62 is happiness "inside and outside".

Anil recently posted a photograph of himself along with the cast of the upcoming film "Malang". He looked so fresh and agile that he could give any of the younger actors a run for their money.

The photograph became fodder for social media users, who went gaga over how the "Dil Dhadakne Do" star is de-ageing. In fact, some users drew a comparison between his old and new pictures, saying how he looks younger now than his younger self.

When cricketer Harbhajan Singh joined Anil's fans in asking what the actor eats to look like a 26-year-old at the age of 62, Anil tweeted: "Happy on the inside and outside! The secret is dedication and hard work (and a few cheat days.)"

The memes haven't stopped still.

Some fans pointed out how Anil is "growing younger", others said Anil may soon act with Kareena and Saif Ali Khan's son Taimur and still look younger and some found humour in calling him a real-life version of "The Curious Case of Benjamin Button". One user commented how Anil could perhaps be seen as his daughter Sonam's son in a movie.

In Mohit Suri's "Malang", Anil has teamed up with Aditya Roy Kapoor, Disha Patani and Kunal Kemmu. It will release on February 14, 2020.

Ayushman To Play Cop

MUMBAI: Versatile actor Ayushmann Khurrana, who has embraced a gamut of on-screen characters -- from a sperm donor to a blind man -- will next be seen essaying the role of a police officer in filmmaker Anubhav Sinha's "Article 15". Sinha unveiled the film's first look on Wednesday. Khurrana will essay the principal protagonist. The supporting cast comprises Isha Talwar, Manoj Pahwa, Sayani Gupta, Kumud Mishra, M Nasser, Ashish Verma and Zeeshan Ayub.
